

Join us as an Editor of Organic Chemistry: An Indian Journal

John Jeff Hardy***

Editorial office, Trade Science, UK

*Corresponding author: John Jeff Hardy, Editorial office, Trade Science Inc., UK, E-mail: hardyi_a@hotmail.com

Received: April 09, 2021; Accepted: April 23, 2021; Published: April 30, 2021

Announcement

First and foremost, we want to thank the editors of the Open Access Journal for their hard work. Organic chemistry refers to the analysis of organic compounds. An Indian journal has teamed up with more than 50 eminent Editors to publish high-quality papers in the field of organic chemistry. We use an Editorial Tracking System, which is an online manuscript submission, inspection, and tracking system, to ensure consistency in the peer review process. Before being published by the publisher, any citable manuscript must be reviewed by at least two independent reviewers; review processing is performed by members of the Journal's editorial board or outside experts. Authors will submit manuscripts to the method and monitor their progress, with the aim of having them written. As you are all aware, we are extremely thankful for the indispensable contributions of our board members to both our robust companion audit framework and the vital progress of the Journal we distribute. The Journal is made up of global experts in similar logical distributions. To ensure delivery consistency, all submitted papers go through several stages. The compositions are audited in the same way as other documents are. The almost infinite supply of paper provides a starting point for screening. In either case, two free references are included with the appropriate posts. Editor-in-Chief The Leader, who is in charge of making a final decision, considers the comments of the arbitrators. Giving timely and positive feedback to our respected creators remains a top priority so that their art can be made accessible to the rest of the world on time. The COVID19 epidemic has wreaked havoc around the world, posing problems for everyone. Several researchers and technicians are also struggling with problems such as laboratory closures and online teaching while also dealing with the impact of the pandemic situation on their daily lives. Some of the editors, reviewers, and contributors of a variety of publications are also doctors fighting the pandemic. As a result, delays are unavoidable during this pandemic, and we would like to express our gratitude. Our Editors and Editorial Advisory Board must discuss the themes we distribute as well as represent the countries from which our submissions are submitted. Furthermore, our journal has aided early-career researchers. Researchers/Scientists/Authors are invited to submit their CV and research interests to join the Editorial Board, where they will collaborate closely with the Editors and Reviewers to ensure a high-quality and timely review process.

Please submit your updated CV, research interests, biography, and recent photograph (JPG) to E-mail: organicchemistry@tradescience.org if you are interested in joining our Editorial Board. The editors are looking forward to working with the newcomers over the next few years. I cordially welcome all members of our board of directors, as well as those who have chosen to join our esteemed group of researchers.